22-year-old London-based artist, Leyla Diamondi, is half-Greek (father) and half-Turkish (mother). She is a representation of the good that can happen when individuals choose unity instead of centuries of cultural and racial division.

Leyla Diamondi's newest single, 'Letting Go (Bad Habits)', when having only been out for a week, sold out its release party at the London Kindred and has already featured and interviewed on BBC Radio London who described the track as "such an easy track to listen too." The single was also added to Warner Bros Topisfy 'Popsito' playlist. The single is also reserved to be added to in-store playlists at Misguided, Mc Donalds and C&A in mid-January.

Since the start of Leyla Diamondi's career in 2019, she has been interviewed and broadcasted on BBC Radio London, multiple BBC Introducing Stations around the country, UK Health Radio (+1.2M listeners), and LGR (400K listeners). She was featured in the BBC 6MUSIC festival fringe in March 2020 and sold out her headliner act at Werkhaus London. At the start of the first lockdown, she helped raise over £80,000 for the WARchild Charity via a virtual performance alongside others artists. She has also been featured on the Discover Weekly playlist on Spotify and her single 'Down for You' featured on the official Hotel Chocolat's in-store playlist for a couple months last year.

With only three years under Diamondi's belt in the industry and being completely independent, Leyla has made quite the impact.
